Language: English
Preferred Citation: Twentieth century photograph collection, Preservation and Special Collections Department, University Libraries, University of Memphis.

Publication date: August 2017
Scope and contents

The collection is an artificial one containing a variety of photographic images, both individual and in albums. Their provenance is known in some cases but not all. The images include family snapshots as well as photographs taken by groups including state agencies and military units. Two albums of interest are A. Frank Eby’s and one owned by an unidentified World War II marine. The former documents a visit to Shiloh National Military Park by Eby and other Indiana Civil War veterans around 1904 soon after many of the monuments were installed. The latter records activities at the Marine Corps training camp at Cherry Point, North Carolina, around 1943 and the owner’s subsequent service in the Pacific campaign. There is also a collection of official photographs of the Naval Air Technical Training Center at Millington, Tennessee, from circa 1943.
